Software Project Management

Xin Dingchen

Zhejiang Normal University

Software Project Management

Abstract

The article gives a brief and concise explanation to the highly valuable nature of software project management(SPM). This article has been formatted, so whether or not you are currently a software project manager, actively working on a project team, or completely in the dark about this mysterious field, this article has something for you. If you are experienced, you'll find this article has something for you. If you are experienced, you'll find this article a light refresher to the subject, and if you are deciding whether or not to delve into the field of software project management, this article may help you make that significant decision.

1   Introduction

Software Project Management is a sub-disciplineof project management in which software projects are planned, monitored and controlled. It decide the software project's life span.

2   Overview

Software Project Management include three parts, plan, monitory and control so that SPM appear in the all life of software project. Firstly, editor need to plan the project how to complete, confirm everybody's job, make a schedule and discuss trifle around the project. Then when the software published, they need to listen advice and update the software make sure that the software is useful and necessary in people's daily life. A good SPM can make the software become more useful and more long lived.

3   Summary

A successful software project meaning people use it not a temporary time. At 2009, Happy Web is the first social networks in China, at that time everyone want have a account about it, but after long time it only allowed testing account using it, so a lot of people lack the interesting about it. In other way, they lack of planning and monitoring without update the web so that this web can't popular now.

Overall, a software project need SPM to change and update it. The science and technology is developing, we want our software project can keep up with people's live feet, a good SPM is essential